Works about Feynman

There are several documentaries with and about Feynman, all made in Britain for the BBC's Horizon program, and shown in the United states by PBS's Nova:

- 'The Pleasure of Finding Things Out';
- 'The Quest for Tannu Tuva' (re-titled 'Last Journey of a Genius' on Nova);
- 'No Ordinary Genius', Parts 1 and 2 (one-hour version re-titled 'The Best Mind Since Einstein' on Nova)

A movie was made about Feynman's life in 1996. Called Infinity and starring Matthew Broderick, the movie focused on Feynman's relationship with his first wife, Arline, with his work on the Manhattan Project serving as a backdrop for what was essentially a love story. The film received mixed reviews, however, and did poorly at the box office.

Finally, the character of Feynman was portrayed by Alan Alda in a play called QED in 2001. The play was essentially a one-man show, with only brief appearances by other characters, portraying Feynman in his office at Caltech and covering many of the stories and anecdotes included in Surely You're Joking, Mr. Feynman! and What Do You Care What Other People Think?
